

Danielle Campagne, MD is a Professor of Clinical Emergency Medicine at UCSF School of Medicine. She earned her bachelor's degree in Biology from Fresno State where she was a member of the honors college and played on the tennis team. She earned her medical degree from the University of Southern California. She completed her residency in Emergency Medicine at the University of California San Francisco, Fresno where she also served as Chief Resident.

Dr. Campagne is currently Interim Chief of Emergency Medicine at UCSF Fresno. She is an active clinical educator and works in the Emergency Department at Community Regional Medical Center. She lectures nationally and internationally on a wide range of Sports Medicine and Orthopedic topics. She has published many research papers on a wide range of topics including Emergency Medical Services, Wilderness Medicine, sepsis and medical education. She co-edited an Emergency Medicine Board Review textbook for Oxford Press and is an Associate Editor for CorePendium, an online medical textbook.

Dr. Campagne is also active in EMS and serves as Medical Director of American Ambulance in Fresno, California. She combines her love of education and EMS through her work as host of a nationally recognized EMS podcast.